Chak De! India is a 2007 Indian sports drama film written and directed by Shimit Amin. A remake of the 2001 Bollywood film Lakshya, it stars Shah Rukh Khan as Kabir Khan, a former captain of the national field hockey team, who gets embroiled in a political controversy following his decision to join politics. The film also stars Anushka Sharma and features Bollywood stars like Irrfan Khan and Om Puri in supporting roles. The Indian men's national field hockey team had won gold medals for seven consecutive Olympics until they lose their final game in 2004 against Pakistan on penalty shots. The team captain, Kabir Khan (Shah Rukh Khan), who used to play hockey for the fictional state of Uttar Pradesh, joins political party All India National Congress (AINC) and decides to run for elections. After the loss in the final game, he is unable to cope with his team's defeat and leaves India. He goes to live in Cardiff with his girlfriend Neha Dhupia where he trains British hockey players. Before leaving India, he had promised coach Madan Chopra (Om Puri) that he would return after four years with enough time before the 2008 Olympics in Beijing. In Cardiff, Kabir finds a government-sponsored hockey academy headed by James "Jim" Craig (Irrfan Khan). Craig is a former captain of Great Britain team and is now coaching young children from around the world. Kabir returns to India, where he goes to see his former team mates. After a series of events, including a court case over financial irregularities and evidence being fabricated against him, Kabir ends up in jail. When he realizes that things have gone out of control, Kabir tries to escape from jail but fails after being caught by police. Thereafter, he is forced to surrender himself again after being framed for rampant corruption in Uttar Pradesh. Kabir's problems get worse when his former team mates and the AINC party accuse him of selling out to corporate lobbyists. He is soon disowned by his team and his former friends, who announce that they will play without him in the Olympics. Thereafter, he is suspended from the party. He then decides to coach Jim's Indians under-16 team instead, who had been abused by their previous coach (a Briton). He begins training them for 18 hours a day. The film follows them as they try to qualify for the 2008 Olympics. They also have to overcome cultural barriers and discrimination from people who believe that Kabir's skills are no longer up to date with modern hockey rules.

Shooting began on 21 October 2007 and the film was completed in 28 days. A new hockey stadium was built in Birmingham to film the action sequences. In 2013, a sequel named "Chak De! India 2" directed by Aanand L. Sharma and produced by Aditya Chopra was officially announced. It will be based on Kabir Khan's character from the 2007 version of the film and will center on his role as an under-16 coach and the training of Craig's young team for the 2020 Summer Olympic Games in Paris, France. The sequel stars Abhishek Bachchan reprising his role from the original film along with Abhay Deol and Boman Irani doing double roles.
